Dear Friends,

In 1984, Seedlings was founded in the basement of my home in Detroit. Since then we have produced and distributed nearly 600,000 braille books to children with vision loss all over the world!

Every time we see a smile on the face of a young braille reader or witness the joy of families who can now read together with the help of our books, we know that our mission of providing quality, affordable braille reading materials is working.

As we grow, we try to stay ahead of the changes happening in braille. On Jan. 4, 2016—the 206th birthday of Louis Braille, the creator of the Braille code—the United States officially adopted the new Unified English Braille (UEB) code to replace the old code, English Braille, American Edition (EBAE). The new code is the preferred code used by English-speaking countries.

In anticipation of that change, we began converting our books to UEB in 2015. To date, we have almost 600 of our 1,300 titles available in UEB! That makes Seedlings a leader among U.S. braille publishers in the number of titles published for children in the new code!

We began by converting our books for younger children and we are now working on our books for older children. Currently, all of our Print-Braille-&-Picture Books, all of our Print-&-Braille Books, and over 250 of our all-braille books for independent readers are in UEB!

It’s a big undertaking, but we are motivated by all of the children with vision loss, their families and teachers who rely on Seedlings to provide the keys to literacy for success in school and beyond.

Since we are adding several new UEB books each month, please be sure to check www.seedlings.org often for the latest UEB titles.

If you have any suggestions about how we can better serve you, please send them our way. We are dedicated to getting as many braille books into the hands of children as we possibly can!

She is one of the best braille readers in the country. This picture is her reading at the airport on the way to the Braille Challenge. We take books everywhere we go. Seedlings is great because the books are ideal for the car!”

“Literacy opens doors to so many opportunities in life: education, travel, employment, independence. Providing braille books for my daughter, Mikaela, has been a vital part of our home since she was an infant. Since we can’t just walk into a bookstore to buy a braille book, we rely on Seedlings to provide amazing accessible resources for our family.”

Spotlight on Seedlings’ Kids

“We love Seedlings’ books! My son Liam is 10 years old and deafblind. One of his very favorite things to do is read braille; he especially loves it when he gets new books! I am thankful that there is a place where we can buy a variety of reasonably priced braille books at different reading levels. We have really appreciated options that include braille and print so Liam can read with family members who may not know braille well yet. Thank you, Seedlings, for all your work supporting a love for literacy for children with vision loss and their families!”

“We're a family of readers and having access to quality books in braille is invaluable and strengthens our bond as a family, as my son can also participate in reading, just like his siblings. Seedlings is one of those resources that has daily impact in our lives and for that, we are very thankful.”

“We have been a Seedlings family since Abi (age 11) was little! Having access to a variety of quality titles has helped her develop her love of reading and her literacy skills so that she reads on grade level. Abi loves finding the magic of a new book! We have been blessed every year by the Angel Book Program and it’s like Christmas when we get the new books in the mail. As a transcriber, I’m impressed with the number of UEB titles Seedlings now offers too.”

“Emma, 6, loves to be read to, and enjoys learning to read and write braille. Thanks to Seedlings’ braille books, her collection is growing. Without Seedlings, Emma would not have braille books to practice reading for herself. We love Seedlings and the amazing donors who make it possible for Emma to have books that are accessible to her.”

Unified English Braille

In November 2012, the Braille Authority of North America (BANA) voted to adopt the Unified English Braille Code (UEB) as the official code for the United States. We then joined several other countries who adopted UEB before us. The new code was implemented in the U.S. on January 4, 2016 and since then, we have converted nearly 600 of our books to UEB, making Seedlings a leader in UEB books for children.

We started with our books for younger children (please see Page 3) and have worked our way up to our popular big books for older children and teens. Some of the bigger books will still be available in the old code (EBAE). Please check our website (seedlings.org) often for updates!

For more information on UEB, see: www.brailleauthority.org

Just as we have in the past, the Seedlings staff will continue to work hard to give you high-quality, low-cost children’s books in braille!

Uncontracted vs Contracted Braille

Uncontracted Braille is the simplest form of braille. It consists of a symbol for each letter of the alphabet and a few for punctuation. In Contracted Braille, several dozen special symbols (contractions and short forms) are added to make the books shorter and reading faster.

Electronic Braille Books

From the beginning of Seedlings’ history, our work and mission have been based on a belief in the value, dignity, and equal rights of all people. We are particularly dedicated to leveling the playing field in terms of access to books and literacy for children with vision loss.

Throughout our history, we have selected books to transcribe into braille that include themes of peace and justice, and that have positive portrayals of people from different backgrounds, ethnicity, and abilities.

“Mila was born blind from a condition called Septo-Optic Dysplasia. To say she loves Seedlings books would be an understatement as these books are her world! Reading is her favorite thing to do thanks to Seedlings. Seedlings books have helped her to be a normal child. They have given her an imagination and a way to bond with her family and friends. They are the only affordable braille books for kids and our go-to place when we need something new to read. Thank you Seedlings for giving Mila the gift of literacy!”

“Our whole family loves to read. Yaakov, age 7, sees his four older siblings reading and loves when we read to him. He has enjoyed the print/braille picture books, and now he has started to read on his own. When he gets books in braille, he can read just like his sister and brothers! He is so excited every time he gets new braille books.”
